

SFL – Goldman Sachs signs lease for over 80% of office space in 83 Marceau

SFL and Goldman Sachs have signed a 12-year lease, with a non-cancellable term of nine years, for almost 6,500 sq.m of office space in 83 Marceau, representing 81% of the building's total surface area.

Overlooking the Place de L'Étoile in Paris' 16th arrondissement, the building is being fully redeveloped by renowned French architect Dominique Perrault (Grand Prix d'Architecture, Praemium Imperiale), with work being carried out by Eiffage, and is slated for delivery in the third quarter of 2021.

The project is particularly focused on entirely replacing the building's façade with a new, contemporary design and developing office floor plates of around 1,200 sq.m, which is rare for the neighbourhood. It also involves creating a terrace on the top floor and a garden at the centre of the complex, surrounded by offices and service areas. The building will house a business centre of almost 1,200 sq.m, furnished by interior designer Ana Moussinet. Featuring a 200-seater auditorium, meeting rooms and a cafeteria, the business centre will be classified as a public access building and will be run by an operator soon to be appointed by SFL. 83 Marceau will meet the most demanding environmental standards, in line with the Paris City Climate Plan, and will be labelled low carbon*.

Following delivery, the building will be home to Goldman Sachs' Parisian headquarters, providing the company with the perfect base to pursue its development in France.

Dimitri Boulte, Managing Director of SFL, commented: "We're delighted that Goldman Sachs has chosen 83 Marceau to house its Paris-based teams. It's one of our most successful projects that plays host to all of our expertise. The uncertain period we have experienced has not affected Goldman Sachs' desire to lease this unique Parisian building, attesting once again to the resilience of our market in Paris, where there is a structural undersupply of 'prime' products".

Pierre Hudry, Partner in charge of Goldman Sachs' operations in France, commented: "We are pleased to announce this next step in expanding our footprint in France. 83 Marceau will give us a unique setting in which we can continue to serve our French clients under the best environmental conditions and attract the best talent. This decision, which will eventually allow us to double our headcount in Paris, highlights our ongoing commitment on the French market to our corporate and institutional clients, as well as the appeal of the Paris financial market".
